About the Wool and Other Business.

George H. Stephens has sent from his ranch at Eureka Springs, near Camp Grant, thirty-six bales of wool to E. N. Fish & Co., to be forwarded to market. The lot weighs nearly 7500 pounds. This is his first clip since engaging in the sheep and wool business. Even at the distance from woolen factories, the growing of wool is more profitable than the raising of barley and wheat. The product of wool seems much like that of gold and silver, in that there is always a ready market for it. Any surplus of wheat, barley, corn, potatoes or other agricultural products, cannot be shipped abroad to a market, but no matter how much is grown in Arizona, it is a commodity that always can be exported at some time. Unlike grain delivered to government, wool delivered right in this territory, the producer cash at once, and he knows just when he can get cash for his purchase. This Territory will not be on a safe or sound footing as long as reliance for cash is from the products of the soil, and the profits on government contracts be regarded as mere subsidies to make but not at all necessary for the persons independence.

Look at Nevada, a section not equal in natural resources to Arizona, but in silver—to Arizona. It is a State whose people are engaged in mining and stock-growing, they know anything and surmise about contracts with the government for grain, flour, meat, wool, or for any other service. They send to the great markets of silver, gold, beef, mutton, and so forth, and get in return ready money. According to the census there is no State in the Union that produces so much wealth as Nevada, almost barren one of Nevada, which concerns itself less about government supplies. It is equal her, and the time when she will be hastened just in proportion as people turn their attention to her rich known natural resources and capabilities.

General Prosperity.

Hon. John Smith, who has recently traveled extensively in Mohave, Yavapai and Maricopa counties, writes a friend in Tucson very hopefully of the evidences of prosperity he observed in many places. He speaks in the highest terms of Mr. Dave Buell's energy and operations in Mohave county. He then goes on to say:

I examined several of the mines in Mineral Park and was truly astonished at the richness of some of them. A company is working the Keystone, on which a shaft is down 100 feet, and work going on day and night. I took some ore out of the bucket as it came up the shaft, and, after washing it, could see free silver all through it. To assay as rich ore as I saw come out of this mine, would be a good deal like assaying a silver dollar.

In Yavapai, also, there seems to be renewed energy displayed. Messrs. Curtiss & Noyes are putting up a 10-stamp mill near their saw-mill. The citizens of Prescott recently raised $2,000 to assist them in the enterprise. If they are successful, many mines will be opened in and around Prescott. The recent discovery in Black Canyon will prove, in my opinion, of immense richness. I am going out there in a few days, as I think the district will be equal to any on the coast.

No less than four prospecting parties passed through McDowell within a week, going in different directions looking for placer diggings.

We can add that at no time in the history of Pima county has there been more successful prospecting going on; and there is much actual mining being done. Within ten days, several wagon loads of provisions have been purchased in Tucson and sent for miners engaged in taking out ore, grinding it in arrastras, sinking shafts, and otherwise opening and operating gold, silver and copper mines.

THE Mazatlan correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin has of late given most gloomy accounts of the financial and other conditions of Mexico. He says but two States of the Republic are holding their own, and that a majority are retrograding rapidly in improvements and some in population; and that the people generally have become indifferent to thrift. He probably writes merely from hearsay and may be inspired by some disappointments. July 14, he gives this bit of news which may not do exact justice to Sir Edward Thornton:

There are in this city many individuals who brought claims against the Mexican government for losses suffered by Mexican rebels, arbitrary levies of troops, etc. All these claims have been rejected by Sir Edward Thornton, the umpire of the Mixed Commission at Washington, who, apparently, wants to indemnify this government for the claims not allowed against the United States.

Merited Compliment.

The Sunday Herald of Washington of July 19, pays Delegate McCormick this deserved compliment:

Governor and Mrs. McCormick leave town this week to visit some of Mr. McCormick's relatives in New York, but will return in a few weeks. We learn with regret that Gov. McCormick has determined to decline a renomination as Delegate from Arizona, for the purpose of giving more attention to his private interests. He has now been twelve years in public life, three years as Secretary of his Territory, three years as Governor, and six years as Delegate, and he is to-day without doubt not only the most widely acquainted with public men and measures, but by all odds the most respected and influential of all the Territorial representatives. We say this without disparagement of others, because Mr. McCormick has had longer experience in the various positions in which a man becomes familiar with public affairs, particularly as affecting the Western Territories. He is also an indefatigable worker, and has always given an unusual amount of time to the interests of his constituents. We understand that the Governor will not abandon his residence in Arizona, and hope we may see him either in the House or the Senate at some future day. Such men are not so plenty in Congress that we can contemplate the loss of one with equanimity.

A DETROIT paper, noticing the fact that a man lately dropped dead while combing his hair, says: "And yet there are people who will persist in this dangerous habit."

The lands described posts were to be treated as if they were owned by the War Department.

THE people of Arizona will welcome the visit of Rev. Bishop Whipple to Spring. After returning to his home in Virginia City, Nevada, he gave the people some notes about Arizona, and the following is an extract therefrom:

The system of schools has been established mainly through the efforts of Gov. A. P. K. Safford. Much of his time and energies for the last three years have been devoted to this work. And he has now the satisfaction of seeing it in successful operation and receiving the indorsement and cordial sympathy of nearly the whole population. In this, as in everything else, Gov. Safford has shown himself to be the true friend of the people and the advocate of their best interests. And his services are appreciated. Probably no Governor of a Territory has ever been held in so high esteem by the whole people as Gov. Safford is by the people of Arizona. And this he deserves; for he has earned their favor by rendering them real service. His labors and success in establishing common schools ought to endear him to them forever.

This is the way it generally is: Mrs. Jones will say to her undutiful little son—"Why ain't you like Willie Brown?" Mrs. Brown will remark to her hopeful—"Why ain't you like Jimmy Jones?" The boys have lots of fun laughing about it, especially when they are stealing watermelons together.
